to-B. H. Smith, E.q., United States District Attorney for West Virginia, has written out an opinion in which he contends that the proposed amendment to the Constitution of this State, is of no force even if adopted. He says the constitution defines the qualifications of voters; and the the Legislature, in violation of the constitution, provided that only a certain class should vote upon the proposed change. To give the amendment force, and incorporate it into the constitution, it should have been voted into the constitution it should have been voted upon by all the voters; and then if a majority had adopted it, the exclusion of southern men from the polls would afterwards have been proper. Mr. S makes put a strong case.

April 3, 1866—4t. A CARD.

A CARD.

To the Editor of the Spirit of Jefferson:—
Sin:—In punishment for some sin committed by me or some of my ancestors, I was put forward as a candidate at the last election in this county.—I have, I think, fully expiated the offence by the amount of abuse I have received, and the exemplary patience with which I have endured it. There is one point, however on which I want to be fully understood, and I deem it of sufficient importance to move me from my usual apathy in political squabbles. It has been falsely and maliciously said that I intended to mix blacks and whites in the same school houses. This I pronounce as false as the heart of the scounder! who invented it, and consequently far more false than the realms of his Satanic Majesty. I consider this disclaimer due to myself and friends, but will hereafter treat the matter with silent consempt. I will conclude by praying that my traducer may some day become a candidate himself, which in my opinion is the greatest punishment that indignant justice could inflict on any criminal.
